For the past ten weeks, Le Cornu Lewis Hancock have continued to operate during the COVID-19 restrictions. Although we closed our premises, we have been able to operate remotely with the help of technology and have all staff working from home. We are extremely proud that our staff were able to adapt quickly and work very effectively under these changing conditions.

In light of the most recent Government advice, we are now in a position to advise you that our premises in Wakefield street will re-open and be fully operational from Tuesday 9th June 2020.

As always, the safety of our clients and staff is our top priority. To this end we have ensured appropriate social distancing and hygiene procedures are in place throughout our office including reception areas and meeting rooms.

We would ask that if you feel unwell that you please refrain from attending our offices. In this event we will be able to meet with you via telephone or video conferencing, as we have been successfully doing with clients over the preceding weeks. Of course there is no obligation on you to attend in person.

COVID-19 has changed the way we live and work and brought multiple challenges to businesses and commercial entities. We are aware there will be on-going challenges for many of our clients and their businesses, and we look forward to assisting you navigate and process the financial and taxation implications of this unprecedented event. As the situation evolves in the coming months, we will continue to provide the best possible strategies and advice for navigating the changes and enable you to emerge in a position of strength.

The Partners thank you for your continued business and wish all those affected by COVID-19 a speedy recovery.
